

Dear Sirs:

I would ask that the FCC not even consider approving the petition to limit the capabilities of XM and other satellite radio providers. Americans have the right to choose, and this petition was only established because someone somewhere is losing money and does not like it. We live in a society, a capitalistic society, where competition is important to the continuance of our way of life, and if the ones that are losing money would like to start turning a profit once again they need to use research and development that will enable them to compete. It is not the job of the FCC or any government agency to limit competition, promote monopoly, or limit the capabilities of a company whose practices are perfectly legal and do not, in any way, harm society. Thank you for your time, and once again I encourage you to vote no!

Sincerely,

Jason Corvin
